Explanatory Memorandum

This Act repeals the Religious Bodies Registration Cap. 89 as stated in section 14. It seeks to make provision for new changes in particular to accommodate new issues which were not catered for in the Ordinance. Of significance is the desire of new religions to register. More powers is accorded to the Registrar of religious bodies in terms of registration as he or she can amend, substitute, remove or withdraw the registration if it does not comply with provisions of this Act. Further it empowers the Registrar to impose fines for non-compliance of this Act.

The Preliminary part is dealt with in sections 1 to 4 in terms of establishing the name of the Act, the date in which the Act will come into force, the definition clause and the establishment of the Registrar. A new definition of "registration" is added and this definition expands the meaning of registration to include the power to amend, substitute, remove and withdrawal of such registration from the register. This was also reflected under the Registrar's power in section 4(3).

An application to register is stated in section 5 and allows religious bodies to apply to the registrar. The application is to be submitted in the form set out in subsection 3 by the head of that body and must comply with the requirements provided in subsection 2. The Registrar will register the name of the religious body in a register book if all the requirements are met and will provide a certificate of registration in a proper form as evidence of their registration (subsections (4) and (7)). The Registrar shall refuse registration of a religious body's name which identical with a name already registered. (subsection 5). The Registrar can also refuse to register a body but must notify the religious body within 14 days and provide reasons. (subsection (6)) Any religious body whose application is refused may apply to the Minister for review. (section 6).

The registration of trustees is provided in section 7 which must be submitted by the head of the religious body to the registrar. A trustees must not exceed 5 people section 7(1), and made in a proper form (7(2)) and the Registrar shall enter the particulars in the register book section 7(3). The reason for registering trustees is to give them legal basis to institute any legal proceedings for and against the religious body as stated in section 8. Section 9 provides for trustees to be beneficial owners of property meaning they will administer the property of that religious body.

Change of the registered trustees is stated in section 10 and it provides that when the trustees dies, resigned and removed the change in the memorial of new trustees will be effected in the same process provided for in section 7. If this change is not registered then their appointment will be of no effect.

Section 11 says that a registration of change must be carried out within 30 days of the change in detail in respect of the name, office and constitution or aims of that religious body. A new form is created in subsection 2 that a change must be filed in the prescribed form by the duly recognised head and 5 other members in the presence of the administrative officer. The Registrar is given the mandate to impose fine under subsection 3 if the religious body failed to comply with subsection (1).

Cancellation of registration is laid out in section 12. If the Registrar is of the opinion that a registration is obtained by fraud, misrepresentation, mistake, the objects and the purpose have become unlawful, a registered name is no longer used or had failed to comply with the provisions of this Act the Registrar must issue a notice to that religious body to provide reasons within 30 days as to why the registration should not be cancelled. A fine of $500 is stated in section 12(3) that the Registrar shall impose.

Section 13 talks on offences generally that must be reported to the office of the Attorney General to deal with it accordingly. The repeal section has been discussed earlier and transitional provision is stated in section 15 which provide for registration made under the repealed Ordinance to be continually recognized under this Act.
